

ROME AND BERLIN BLASTED BY BOMBERS AS ALLIES CLOSE ON SICILY'S PORT

AXIS CAPITALS HIT SAME NIGHT BY AIR ATTACK

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Many of our Fayette County boys in the last two years have traveled in Pullman or sleeping cars for the first time, and have enjoyed the novel experience of sleeping, or trying to sleep, aboard a moving train throughout the night.

During the past few years I have traveled about 12,000 miles on Pullman cars, and these air-conditioned cars make traveling restful and a real pleasure instead of being tiresome and unpleasant.

At the present time more than 800,000 service men are transported in mass movements in Pullman cars every month.

The Pullman Company recently issued a booklet giving the origin of Pullman car names, and other valuable information about Pullmans and Pullman service.

The first Pullman car was a remodeled coach, built in 1858 and named Number 9 and Number 19 was subsequently built. The first complete Pullman car was built in 1865 by George M. Pullman and called the "Pioneer". After that the number increased rapidly.

A special series of names for cars make it possible for railroad men to identify certain types of cars quickly by their names.

For example, all car names preceded by "Mt.", "Mountain" are observation cars, containing 10 sections. The "Lake" series contain 10 sections, a drawing room and two compartments. The 10 section—two drawing room cars are named "Points" as "Point Hope", etc.

"Just plain, ordinary, commonplace manners and politeness seem to be on the wane with some folks, or possibly they never cultivated such a thing as politeness," said a friend of mine.

"Take for instance when I was in a restaurant here, a few days ago, there sat three young men at a table, eating lunch, and all wearing their hats".

As a matter of fact I had noticed something like that myself, upon three or four occasions, and wondered what had become of the manners of those who were eating with their hats on.

I have never seen very many places where men ate with their hats on, and then they were stared at by men and women alike, and the first place was in a self-serve restaurant in Indianapolis, a number of years ago, when a half score of men in the place were eating with their hats on, although there were plenty of hat racks nearby.

Perhaps the hat-on-eaters are trying to emulate that little group of Hoosiers!

I've been wondering lately why manufacturers of the erasers put on pencils nowadays haven't considered the possibilities of the humble milkweed.

The sap of the milkweed is a thick, white, gooey liquid which bears a strong resemblance to latex, the product of the rubber tree. When heated, it changes into a thick, black stretchy substance that looks suspiciously like raw rubber.

Now it seems to me, with all the vitamins which produce miraculous growth in plants now available, that some enterprising pencil company would plant a milkweed ranch, hire a progressive botanist to nurture the plants until they were of super giant size, and tap the stems regularly. By processing the sap obtained, maybe an eraser could be developed which wouldn't break off when I use a little too much elbow grease.

Or maybe I'm not cut out to be a pencil magnate.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Allied authorities announced today that the U. S. Seventh Army had captured Cape Orlando, the German coastal stronghold which was outflanked by an American landing from the sea Wednesday.

The fall of the cape, little more than 40 miles west of Messina, came after American troops to the east and west had established a junction and overrun the adjacent towns of Nasso and Brolo. Axis prisoners now exceed 130,000, it was announced.

The Americans under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., sprang forward eight miles along the northern coast through Cape Orlando while the British Eighth Army advanced four miles on the east coast, threatening Taormina.

Both Allied wings were within 35 miles of Messina, whose beaches were the scene of an increasing enemy evacuation movement to Italy.

Randazzo, the central anchor of the Germans' rear guard line, was menaced from the flank as American infantrymen surged forward over the northern ring of mountains.

Nasso lies two miles south of the tip of Cape Orlando; Brolo is four miles east of the cape. The operations involved crossing of the Nasso River, the communicate said.

GASOLINE RATION CUT MAY BE FOURTH

Report 'Leaks' from OPA as Broadcast Scheduled

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Chester Bowles, general manager of the Office of Price Administration at Washington, has scheduled a Sunday night broadcast concerning gasoline rationing.

Notice of the broadcast, from 8:15 to 8:30 P. M. (blue network) was received today by the regional OPA.

This was the only announcement made by regional offices here in connection with published reports that gasoline rationing for motorists in central and midwestern states would be cut 25 percent at midnight Sunday.

Birkett L. Williams, regional OPA administrator, said "no comment" when asked whether he had received an order for a reduction in rations.

Russian Drive Tightens Trap About Kharkov

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Russian troops tightened their hold around Kharkov today by smashing inward from a point less than five miles away while to the north a drive against Bryansk was stepped up in strength.

In strong fighting for Bryansk, the Moscow midnight communiqué said, the Red forces have engulfed the important German stronghold of Dmitrovsk-Orlovsky and 110 populated places south and east of Karachev, which straddles the rail line between captured Orel and Bryansk.

Storming in toward Kharkov, Soviet forces to the south have taken the town of Chuguev, 22 miles distant. The Moscow announcement, recorded here by the Soviet Monitor, said the Nazis were in headlong retreat in that area. The nearest approach to Kharkov was to the northeast.

Allied Commanders Warn

From All Sides

(By The Associated Press)
Japan, fearful that a second U. S. attack on her Kurile island chain presaged raids on the Japanese mainland itself, has been warned by an American air commander that even greater aerial blows are to come in the Pacific.

Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, commander of air activities in the Solomons, asserted that there would be no letup, and that the Pacific offensive had reached "the second quarter of the game with our forces possessing the ball and with an impressive score behind them."

Japan's Kurile Islands, 1,200 miles northeast of Tokyo, were raided yesterday (Far Pacific time) by big Liberator bombers which shot down five of 40 enemy defenders.

GESTAPO IS CURBED WHEN GOING TOUGH

MADRID, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Travelers arriving in Spain from Berlin reported today Heinrich Himmler, head of the German Secret Police, has been ordered to stop terrorizing anti-Nazi Germans. Despite their dislike of the Nazi party, these Germans are reported, willing to cooperate in defending the Fatherland against the Allies.

The fall of Fascism in Italy, the travelers said, had convinced the German army leaders that Nazism must be subordinated and European cooperation encouraged to meet the crisis facing Germany.

In the Bryansk sector, the communiqué said, the Soviet attackers pushed to a point 25 miles southeast of Bryansk. Moscow claimed 1,800 Germans were annihilated in that sector.

Gains also were reported west and southwest of Kromi, between Orel and Karachev. Soviet guards stormed into Dimitrovsk-Orlovsky, which the Germans had transformed into a strongly fortified bastion, and smashed enemy resistance after fierce street fighting. More than 2,000 German officers and men were slain in this engagement.

On the Kharkov salient the Germans were reported using fresh forces rushed from Germany in an attempt to stem the Russian tide, and had even ordered technical units and engineering detachments into the front lines.

The Kharkov escape corridor has been narrowed from 60 to 37 miles during the past 48 hours, and as the struggle for the city entered its ninth day, the Nazis would fight to the finish rather than attempt a strategic retreat. Their losses were heavy, according to the Soviet communiqué. 3,000 officers and men being killed in two days of battle.

Bodyless Head Of Dog Blinks Eyes In Eerie Russian Science Show

By WADE WERNER
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Last night was a scientific night at the Soviet embassy, and strange things happened on the embassy movie screen.

A dog was killed, remained dead for 10 minutes, and then was brought back to life by blood pumped into its arteries. Another dog was decapitated, but the bodyless head went right on winking its eyes at a moving light, pricked up its ears and "barked" at a sudden noise, and licked its chops when something tasty was smeared on its lips and muzzle—all because an ingenious machine was feeding blood into the "dead" animal's brain.

The blindness of the mother instinct, as it was called, was illustrated by another film in which a bird kept right on feeding worms and insects into its nest because an electrically-wired dummy fledgling opened its

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

QUEBEC, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A Moscow announcement that Russia was not invited to sit in on the councils which President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will open here soon suggested today the conferences would emphasize military rather than political aspects of Allied war plans.

There has been no definite announcement of the subjects with which the conference will deal or when the talks will begin. Churchill, now absent from Quebec, visited Niagara Falls yesterday and then left for an unannounced destination.

The Russian announcement, recorded in London by the Soviet Monitor, was broadcast by the official Soviet news agency Tass which said it had been authorized to state that "the Soviet government did not receive an invitation to be present at the meeting."

MATERNITY CARE FOR SERVICEMEN'S WIVES APPROVED

Ohio Program Allows Fee
Of $40 for Physicians

By ARTHUR BOSTWICK

COLUMBUS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—An Ohio program allowing a maximum doctor's fee of $40 for free maternity care for wives and infants of enlisted men in all branches of the armed forces was approved today by the U. S. Children's Bureau.

The plan also recommends hospitalization for mother and child to a maximum of 14 days, with a minimum of 10 days. The hospital costs shall not exceed $6.50 daily, payable out of federal funds. Hospital payments will be made on a ward-rate basis.

The $40 maximum allowed for a physician's fee includes $10 for prenatal care, $25 for delivery and $5 for a post-confinement examination of the mother. Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, explained.

"The program should be started by Monday," Dr. Markwith said. "We want to do all we can for the wives and infants of the men in service."

Under the plan, the attending doctor agrees not to accept additional payments from other sources.

Dr. Markwith estimated that of 12,000 births in Ohio monthly, about 1,200 are to wives of men in service.

Entire Axis Battery Wiped Out By Amazing Yank Artillerymen

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY BEYOND TROINA, Sicily, Aug. 10.—(Delayed)—(AP)—How a American artillery fire wiped out an enemy battery of 12 heavy enemy guns and destroyed 18 vehicles—one of the most remarkable feats of the Sicilian campaign—was described today by a young officer.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A huge fleet of American bombers again blasted Rome today, destructively emphasizing the recent warning to the Italian people that mass Allied raids were about to be resumed.

The fleet of American bombers, including Flying Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders, attacked the Italian capital before noon, it was announced, with the railroad freight yards again the principal targets.

Rome was first bombed in a daylight raid by American precision bombers on July 19.

Behind the wave of Fortresses in today's raid came the lighter Mitchells and Marauders, bombing from low levels and pouring their tracers into the center of an already burning area.

The raid probably equaled the first in size, when Allied air commanders put into the air the greatest aerial concentration since the beginning of the Mediterranean campaign.

So far as was known, no statement of explanation was radioed to the Italian people this time as was done before.

The new attack was a warning that the Allied threat to bomb Rome again would be maintained.

A special air communiqué, which did not give all the details given in later announcements, said:

"Strong forces of heavy and medium bombers of the Northwest African Air Forces today attacked marshaling yards at Rome."

The raid on the Italian capital was disclosed shortly after London announced that Britain-based bombers, attacking northern Italy in greater strength than ever before, raided Milan and Turin last night.

At the same time, swift RAF Mosquitos struck at Berlin, so both Axis capitals felt the sting of Allied air power.

Twin Brothers Disappear at

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Two 13-year-old twin boys, missing from their west side home overnight, were sought today in a Cleveland suburb where police found nine-year-old Jack Buchanan, who had been abducted and attacked by a sex degenerate.

The missing twins are James and Charles Collins, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Collins. They apparently disappeared on the way from their home to the Lakewood Country Club in Westlake where they are caddies.

Cleveland and Suburban police searched fields and woods in Westlake, Rocky River, Fairview and Bay Village. Fear was expressed that the same man who assaulted the Buchanan boy, son of City Food Inspector E. B. Buchanan, had abducted the twins.

SHOW CASE CO. ELECTS BOARD

Annual Business Meeting Is Held and Affairs Discussed

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Morton Show Cases, Inc., held Thursday afternoon, the same board of directors was re-elected for the coming year. The board has not re-organized, however.

Board members re-elected were John Morton (president), H. M. Rankin (Secy. Treas.), Harry Douglas, Frank S. Jackson and S. A. Dewey.

Reports showed that the first six months of the year business was below normal due to priorities and inability to obtain material.

The last six months showed a pronounced improvement, and one product now being manufactured, caskets, is being turned out in large numbers, but still in not sufficient quantity to meet the demand, due to labor shortage.

The company is employing some 40 persons at present.

The mileage of civil airways in the U. S. has increased more than 700 percent since 1927.

pelled and towed 155 mm guns on the target.

"When they cut loose it looked like they were blasting the hill in half. They poured in a concentration of five rounds each in a three-minute barrage. That turned out the lights for the enemy battery. No more fire came from them.

"Next day our infantry was able to pass this position and found signs indicating that all 12 guns had been in line close together.

"Doughboys found seven guns totally wrecked and 18 enemy vehicles smashed by our fire. About a mile down the road came across three more guns in such bad shape that the enemy had been forced to abandon them, and still farther along they discovered two more damaged guns which the Italians, after trying to tow away, had blown up.

"So we got 12 out of 12. It's a very unusual thing to catch and knock out an entire battalion of enemy artillery. I don't recall any time in the Tunisian campaign when we got that many guns together at one time."

SOLDIER HELD AFTER ACCIDENT

Fort Knox Car Contained Colonel's Property Police Say

A soldier who gave one name but was carrying papers bearing two or three other names, including that of Col. George L. Miller, Culver, Indiana, was taken into custody following an accident at Herb's Drive In, about 10:30 P. M. Thursday night when he backed his car into Roscoe Wilson's car. Damage was estimated at about $30.

The soldier gave the name of Joseph A. Ambrose, but the driver's license carried was made out to Col. George L. Miller.

It was a special Chrysler automobile bearing Fort Knox, Ky. license plates and contained personal property of Col. Miller and A. B. Labarbera.

After taking the man into custody, Captain Jess Ellis notified Fort Hayes officials who in turn were to communicate with Fort Knox and clear up the presence of the man here with the big Chrysler.

RUSSIA NOT INVITED TO WAR CONFERENCE BY U. S. AND BRITAIN

the conference," the announcement added, "the participation of any one representative of the Soviet government at the meeting in Quebec was not and is not envisaged."

Russian desires for another front recently have been underscored, and the question of an invasion of the foe's European stronghold continues the most provocative topic likely to appear on the Quebec agenda.

Roosevelt and Churchill may have made their decisions already on that point. If they have, undoubtedly they will wish to re-examine them now and perhaps make the final determinations of the exact invasion routes, the number and nationality of the troops to be employed, and the methods of getting immense quantities of equipment and supplies to the right spots.

Tied in with these considerations are Russian successes on her central front. In the United Nations war scheme, it would appear that the most important assignment for Soviet arms is to keep right on pounding the Nazis back toward their homeland.

Thus there might be no imperative reason now, from the standpoint of combat strategy, for the presence here of Russian Premier Stalin and an array of his military advisers.

The first waves of Flying Fortresses ran over Rome this morning and hit the San Lorenzo yards a little after 11 A. M. Almost simultaneously, Mitchells and Marauders began bombing the Littorio yards.

It was an all-American raid again, the bombers coming from the strategic air force which is commanded by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle.

As before, the pilots were instructed before going out on the necessity of getting their bombs in the target area and to avoid hitting churches or historical objects.

An air force commentator, pointing out the strategic importance of Rome in the Axis communications system, said the capital fort must be considered as any other military objective.

The San Lorenzo yards, situated in the east central part of Rome, connect rail traffic with Florence and Naples, while the Littorio yards are the link with Genoa.

A heavy volume of German military traffic has been flowing through the two yards.

Berlin, whose people have been warned to expect mass Allied attacks with the approach of longer nights, had been bombed 67 times previously, the last time in May.

Part of the German capital's population already is being evacuated in anticipation of the forthcoming assaults, and air raid trenches are being constructed hurriedly within the city to supplement the inadequate shelters. The government itself is reported to be preparing to leave the capital.

Turin, with its Fiat Aero Engine factories, the Italian Royal Arsenal, and chemical and other factories, has been bombed 30 times before.

Milan, one of Italy's most heavily defended cities, is the site of the Caproni Aircraft works, the Breda Armament works, tire factories and aircraft engine factories. Great damage already had been caused in nine previous raids, the last on Saturday night.

Following that raid reports from the Italian frontier said crowds paraded in the streets with renewed demands for peace.

The Air Ministry announced 13 bombers were missing from the night's forays.

Southeast coast observers said waves of bombers crossed one section in an unbroken stream for more than two hours.

Dispatches from the Swiss border said the raiders were over

Milan for more than an hour and that explosions could be heard plainly and a glow lit up the skies.

British intruder planes struck at the continent last night, attacking Axis shipping and airports in France, and shooting down a German plane over France, it was announced.

The night raids followed daylight attacks on three German Ruhr and Rhineland cities yesterday by American Flying Fortresses.

The American raids were directed at synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Wesseling and industrial targets at Bonn.

German planes hit back at England last night, bombing the coastal district of East Anglia and causing some damage, it was announced. There were no reports of casualties.

Allied planes, swarming over the narrow Messina Strait which separates the island from the mainland, were taking a heavy toll of Axis evacuation barges and their occupants despite a terrific anti-aircraft barrage laid down by hundreds of guns, reports to headquarters said.

The narrowness of the strait made it likely the Germans would save a considerable portion of their remaining divisions and equipment from annihilation.

The narrowness of the strait made it likely the Germans would save a considerable portion of their remaining divisions and equipment from annihilation.

Nolan Norgard, Associated Press correspondent with the British Eighth Army, reported last night that orders left behind by the withdrawing Germans decreed that Italian troops be ruthlessly brushed aside and driven from the roads to clear a path for the retreat on Messina.

The scaping Germans were ordered to bring all possible equipment with them, Norgard wrote, and quoted captured Germans as early yesterday contributed their share of the Allied aerial effort to force the Italians from the war. They heavily attacked railway sidings at San Giovanni, on the toe of Italy just opposite the Axis Messina bridgehead on Sicily.

The first waves of Flying Fortresses ran over Rome this morning and hit the San Lorenzo yards a little after 11 A. M. Almost simultaneously, Mitchells and Marauders began bombing the Littorio yards.

It was an all-American raid again, the bombers coming from the strategic air force which is commanded by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle.

As before, the pilots were instructed before going out on the necessity of getting their bombs in the target area and to avoid hitting churches or historical objects.

An air force commentator, pointing out the strategic importance of Rome in the Axis communications system, said the capital fort must be considered as any other military objective.

The San Lorenzo yards, situated in the east central part of Rome, connect rail traffic with Florence and Naples, while the Littorio yards are the link with Genoa.

A heavy volume of German military traffic has been flowing through the two yards.

Berlin, whose people have been warned to expect mass Allied attacks with the approach of longer nights, had been bombed 67 times previously, the last time in May.

Part of the German capital's population already is being evacuated in anticipation of the forthcoming assaults, and air raid trenches are being constructed hurriedly within the city to supplement the inadequate shelters. The government itself is reported to be preparing to leave the capital.

Turin, with its Fiat Aero Engine factories, the Italian Royal Arsenal, and chemical and other factories, has been bombed 30 times before.

Milan, one of Italy's most heavily defended cities, is the site of the Caproni Aircraft works, the Breda Armament works, tire factories and aircraft engine factories. Great damage already had been caused in nine previous raids, the last on Saturday night.

Following that raid reports from the Italian frontier said crowds paraded in the streets with renewed demands for peace.

The Air Ministry announced 13 bombers were missing from the night's forays.

Southeast coast observers said waves of bombers crossed one section in an unbroken stream for more than two hours.

Dispatches from the Swiss border said the raiders were over

Milan for more than an hour and that explosions could be heard plainly and a glow lit up the skies.

British intruder planes struck at the continent last night, attacking Axis shipping and airports in France, and shooting down a German plane over France, it was announced.

The night raids followed daylight attacks on three German Ruhr and Rhineland cities yesterday by American Flying Fortresses.

The American raids were directed at synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Wesseling and industrial targets at Bonn.

German planes hit back at England last night, bombing the coastal district of East Anglia and causing some damage, it was announced. There were no reports of casualties.

east coast there were further gains, despite stiffening resistance from the suicide rear guards which the Germans have left behind to cover their withdrawal from the Messina bridgehead to Sicily.

The Eighth Army reached the village of Trearchirafi, on the east coast three miles south of Riposto, and is threatening Giarre, the commune said.

"Northwest of Mt. Etna, after bitter fighting north of Bronte, the Eighth Army succeeded in making an advance towards Malletto in cooperation with the (U. S.) Seventh Army troops, who are now four miles from Randazzo on the Cesaro Road," it stated. "American mobile forces covering the left of this advance on Randazzo made considerable progress across the mountain today."

Allied planes, swarming over the narrow Messina Strait which separates the island from the mainland, were taking a heavy toll of Axis evacuation barges and their occupants despite a terrific anti-aircraft barrage laid down by hundreds of guns, reports to headquarters said.

The narrowness of the strait made it likely the Germans would save a considerable portion of their remaining divisions and equipment from annihilation.

Nolan Norgard, Associated Press correspondent with the British Eighth Army, reported last night that orders left behind by the withdrawing Germans decreed that Italian troops be ruthlessly brushed aside and driven from the roads to clear a path for the retreat on Messina.

famed as inventor of the cyclotron; Prof. Walter B. Cannon, Harvard physiologist; and Prof. Gilbert N. Lewis of the University of California, noted for his achievements in the field of atomic research.

The arterial and venous pump used in the dog revivification picture was described by a Soviet scientist as an important factor in the development of blood transfusion technique—a subject of vast importance in modern war surgery. Some of the dogs used in the experiments, he explained, were left untouched for 15 minutes after stoppage of the heart through loss of blood; then successfully brought back to life with use of the blood pump.

RATION TOKEN 'COINS' ARE NOW IN PROSPECT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—If you've figured out now how to tell the new pennies from dimes, you're ready for the next course in wartime coinage—ration tokens.

The Office of Price Administration (OPA) said today it was fairly certain ration coins would go into use on or about Jan. 1 to supplement, but not replace, ration stamps. They will be handed out by the grocer as change for ration stamps.

THE WAR TODAY

Actual Invasion of Europe Likely To Be Planned by Roosevelt and Churchill

The gods of war certainly are smiling on the great and going concern of Roosevelt, Churchill and Co., as the senior partners prepare to begin what probably are their most important conversations since the first historic conference on the Atlantic in the perilous days of '41.

That is to say things military are going exceedingly well. There are great international political problems to plague the chiefs, but the matter of immediate concern presumably is where and when the Anglo-American allies can best swarm aboard the European continent and capitalize the successes of the Red armies before opportunity takes a nose-dive.

Things could scarcely be going better on the two land fronts and the one air front of the European theater. That certainly should facilitate the difficult decision the President and Britain's prime minister must make.

On the crucial Russian front there has been no slackening in the Red offensive which threatens to force the Huns to withdraw their entire thousand-mile battle-line. With the key positions of Orel and Belgorod already well behind the advancing Soviet front, the great fortified railway center of Kharkov, still farther south, is threatened with encirclement, and the Muscovites are virtually at the gates of the beleaguered city.

The Nazis are in a precarious position. Thus far there's no indication that the Reds are weakening in the striking power necessary to permit continuation of their drive to crack the German line and precipitate a rout.

Should the Russian assault lose steam the western Allies are able to take major action to divert further Nazi strength from the eastern front, then the opportunity for a quick Allied coup de grace might be swallowed up in the bad weather of autumn, and the war would be protracted. That's a contingency the conference between Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill is calculated to meet.

In Sicily the end of Axis resistance is very near. Already the fiercely fighting Germans are admitting defeat by the withdrawal of troops across the narrow strait of Messina to the mainland. They are pulling out in small craft under a canopy of anti-aircraft fire to ward off the ceaseless attack by Allied war planes which are taking a bloody toll.

Even more encouraging than the Sicilian success is the status of the Anglo-American aerial bombardment of western Europe and Germany. That assault, unprecedented in its terrific force, has as its purpose the reduction of the Reich to impotence by destruction of its war industries, supply centers, naval bases and land communications of all sorts.

So thorough has been the devastation among the Nazi war industries of western Europe that London tells us an end has been put to the steady flow of Hitler's basic materials. The great American and British bombers therefore are able to turn part of their attention to centers manufacturing consumer goods, like the famous and ancient city of Nuremberg. The purpose of that, of course, is to hit the morale of the civilian population.

One of the essentials for invasion of western Europe was destruction of the main sources of Hitler's war supplies. London's statement indicates that the air navies have wrought so well that the Fuehrer now must be feeding heavily off his fat, that is, the resources which he had stored away before the round-the-clock bombing started.

So by and large, the Allied chiefs should be pleased with the set-up as they sit down at the conference table.

You, our customers and friends, have made it possible for us to grow from a 60 gallon to one of 650 gallons per day delivery.

We are proud of this record because we feel that we have made a place in this community for another worthwhile industry.

From a "one man" business we have developed into a modern dairy plant with all up to date and sanitary equipment that complies with every phase of both state and federal regulations.

We had planned to have a formal opening of our recently remodeled plant, but war conditions have prevented us from obtaining all of the materials to complete our plans in detail - - But - -

Please accept this as an invitation to visit our plant at any time, in order that we may personally explain the processes through which your milk passes in order that you may enjoy the best, which we feel is none too good for our patrons.

The entire personnel of our plant wishes to thank you for your patronage, and also for the patience you have shown during the remodeling and enlarging of our plant. We shall continue our efforts in a way, that we hope, will always merit your confidence and patronage.

DANGER AT HOME

Accusing a person of complacency toward the war is tantamount to an insult. Everyone likes to think he is doing his part to achieve victory and doesn't like to be told otherwise. There is no such explosive reaction, however, when complacency is charged with respect to domestic issues. Many people believe domestic issues are something for politicians and theorists of doubtful ideals, to settle among themselves. If they persist in that belief, the republic, and individual liberty will eventually be destroyed as completely as if the nation had been overrun by the mechanized hordes of the dictators.

A revolution is impending in this country. It may be a bloodless revolution, but nonetheless a revolution—a revolution about which no freedom-loving American can be complacent. At the present moment, the country is existing in a vacuum. Irrespective of our apparent unanimous pride in the achievements of private industry in producing for war, the stage is being set for the substitution of government-owned industry on a large scale for privately-owned and operated industry. This is revolution. It is revolution because it will change our form of government.

No government can govern and employ the people it governs, and still remain democratic. So far, the people do not seem to realize this. If they did, they would be fearful of legislation which promotes government ownership, as in the case of coal mines; they would be alarmed over the fact that a large percentage of industry is already owned outright by government as a result of the war emergency; they would be indignant that agencies of government, supported by the taxes they pay, are "planning" the deliberate destruction of the American system of free enterprise, by permanently socializing the natural resource and transportation industries.

The same kind of complacency which very nearly led to military disaster, is now dulling our sensibilities to dangers at home. The depth of the danger can be measured in the words of Fulton Lewis, Jr., nationally known radio commentator: "... To me it is shocking and frightening in the extreme that those in Washington who conceived the Four Freedoms didn't have sufficient acquaintance with real Americanism to have included in their list the most important and the most vital freedom of all... Freedom of Individual Enterprise."

THE UNSUNG ARMY

One small army of war workers, of whose existence we are more or less vaguely aware, is the group of American scientists who have worked tirelessly to overcome shortages of critical and strategic materials.

So successfully have they executed their tasks that the War Production Board is able to announce, as it has recently, that supplies of such materials had been increased to such an extent that no matter how long the war lasted, the WASHINGTON—The man chiefly responsible for AMGOT never lived to see the fruit of his labors. AMGOT—Allied Military Government of Occupied Territories—now is operating in Sicily, marking the first time that the United States, which has established many military governments, has ever been prepared for the job.

Credit for this preparation—the careful decisions on policy, the determination of possibilities and limitations, the choice of methods, the intensive schooling of officers for AMGOT and nothing else—is shared by many men, but most of it goes to the late Col. Irvin Leland Hunt.

Hunt died in Washington 10 years ago, when he was 56. And for 10 years before that, military government had been no concern of his. Nevertheless, AMGOT is Hunt's brainchild. For Hunt was the officer in charge of civil affairs in the American zone of the occupied Rhineland, the man responsible—under the commanding general—for the military government of the area.

Out of the successful improvisations of that experience came his full analysis of the problem and his urgent recommendation that when, if ever, America again faced a similar prospect, the Army get ready with a specially trained group to handle the task. His report was one of the most complete and meticulous ever written by an Army officer on any operation and it was documented with specific examples of every kind of problem encountered, and the action taken to meet it.

When Col. Archibald King, now chief of the War Plans Division, Judge Advocate General's office, was assigned in the fall of 1939 to prepare a field manual on military government, he sent for Hunt's four-volume report, brushed off the dust of its 25 years in the archives, and made it the basis of his booklet.

Until the country was at war, little more needed to be done, but

The Eggs Hens Lay Leave Them Speechless
BUTTE, Mont.—City ordinances to the contrary, a hen that wouldn't cackle over a freshly laid egg hardly would be worth her board and room, a backyard war-time poultry grower told Beryl Wilson, city clerk. That bit of biological information was offered when the amateur poultry grower was told the city's anti-noise ordinance prohibits the raising of chickens if they "crow or cackle noisily, disturbing neighbors. "I don't intend to raise roosters but I'll be dogged if I'm going to wrap rubber bands around the bills of my hens so they can't cackle after they've laid an egg," retorted the chicken grower.

United Nations generally would have enough to meet military needs.

Metallurgists and mineral experts are winning the Battle of Materials and proving that American technologists are more versatile and more comprehensive than German scientists. "These men of science," the WPB said in an announcement, "have broken such potential bottlenecks as the shortage of quartz crystals... they have stepped up aluminum production... they have made possible enormous quantities of magnesium... Other similar and related activities have resulted in desperately needed increases in other critical materials and metals, including copper, chrome, manganese and rubber."

These men have had the facilities and training of industry's largest research departments behind them. For American industry, always searching for new ideas, realizes the stark necessity for inventiveness now. It is that spirit of scientific pioneering which gave us the world's highest standard of living that now backs up our scientists in the nation's interests.

THE 1943 VERSION

From Tunisia comes the 1943 version of an old anecdote. Stunned Nazi prisoners ask to be shown the 34th division's "automatic artillery." They got the idea when the division plastered the Germans with 8500 rounds in 80 minutes.

The same story was current in France as early as the winter of 1917-18, when Germans were said to have asked to see the 26th division's 75-millimeter machine guns. Our artillerymen fired so fast that the enemy is supposed to have doubted that anything but a machine gun could have maintained the pace.

Ideals on Food Research

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE PRONOUNCEMENTS of the National Research Council on Nutrition are getting to sound a good deal like radio commercial continuity. They discuss only one side of the question, and if you will follow his advice absolutely and not pay attention to anything else, all your children and dependents will be perfectly healthy and happy.

Now it just so happens that in the field of nutrition there are individual differences between men and women, women and women, and women and men. This fellow may get along all right on the National Nutrition Council's daily allowance of protein, while the other fellow is miserable on it. And both would be eating perfectly healthful diets for them if they could get what they want.

The rigid demands made for the daily amount of vitamins to be eaten is based on no scientific data whatever. No scientist on earth knows what the minimum daily amount of vitamin C to keep you healthy is. It was recently pointed out that the symptoms of deficiency of the vitamin, riboflavin, which have been discussed at such length probably do not exist at all or are due to many causes, not just riboflavin deficiency. So when you start out to follow a rigidly scientifically calculated diet which has worked all right for John Doe in the laboratory, it may not suit you, Thomas Jefferson Adams Jackson, at all.

Fundamental Errors

One of the fundamental errors of highly scientific boards is that the members are used to applying animal experiments directly to human conditions. They do not always fit. The experimenters might know this because their common laboratory animals cannot be used for the same experiments at all. The common laboratory animals are the rat, the guinea pig and the rabbit.

The rat has always been a scavenger, eats everything, lives in filth and with disease, and you can hardly infect him with anything in the way of a germ, but he melts and moults and withers and gets scabby at any removal of vitamins from his diet.

The guinea pig, on the contrary, being for ages used to getting all its vitamins from a monotonous diet, is pretty resistant to vitamin deficiency experiments, but curls up when any infection hits him; so he is a good bacteriological experimental animal. The rabbit is sort of betwixt and between on both of these, but you can knock him for a loop on reproductive experiments.

Results of Laboratory Work

The results of all the laboratory work on these diverse animals is applied to man as if there were no differences between them. If nothing else, there is a difference in size between man and these animals. The reverse would be if a laboratory had devoted itself to experiments on a wild bear, a bear and a mastodon and the experimenters came rushing in, bug-eyed, to apply the results to you and me and our little girls and boys.

They might not be analogous. The charting of the food requirements as put out by the National Nutrition Board are all right, but don't get discouraged if everybody in your family doesn't follow them. Nature and instinct have been at work a good deal longer than modern nutritional science.

Manpower Shortage on Home Front Gets Attention

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—More soldiers are coming out of the army to relieve the manpower shortage on the home front.

Tomorrow the army will start furloughing 4,500 soldiers, a War Production Board official said, to go into certain metal and mineral mines badly lacking workers.

The soldiers will be sent to the mines on a priority basis, so many to another WPB and the War Manpower Commission have worked out a national basis for the first time a system of priority of manpower going into industry. Copper heads the list.

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

THIS WAS a nice place to sit in a parked car and talk, Karen decided. There was shade from the late afternoon sun under the tall Australian pine; the lake was full of movement, little fishing boats coming in from their day's labor, a white yacht bobbing up and down, like a rocking chair, on the choppy crest of its blue-green surface. The bridge was deserted, for the home-bound traffic was not yet unleashed. In a cloudless sky an airplane banked and circled, its drone the soothing sound of bees, practicing maneuvers.

She said the usual things about the war—how terrible it was, how unexpected, how everyone was now anxious to do his part, asking the usual questions. What did Marty think about it? Did he believe it would have to last very long? Was there any danger of the mainland being attacked? She did not ask, not so soon or so directly, what he was going to do about it.

She realized that she had done the talking; Marty had given the expected answers at expected intervals. It had come sooner than foreseen; it was a stab in the back; no one could predict how long it might last; he was not of the opinion that the mainland could be invaded, not by Japanese on the west coast, or Hitler on the east.

But he did not answer the important questions: what he himself thought, what he was going to do. He did not add his usual discussion of war. He had said that she could talk, and that he would listen. That was about what it amounted to, Karen decided. If she wanted anything more from him, she would have to ask for that.

She said, "The reason we postponed our wedding until spring"—oh, surely it only was postponed for that short time—"was because Paul had immediately signed up with the Civil Air Patrol. He flew four hours at a time. He turned over his plane to the government, too."

"That's most commendable, considering the government needs all private planes and things like that million-dollar yacht anchored out there before this fracas is much farther along. And considering that this coast must be protected, as well as our other fronts that are more dangerous and farther removed from our shores. But of course he would do the right thing, your young man, if always a bit late doing it," he ended on a different tone, his teasing one, one that did not hold the slight irony in his first words that were contradicted by his last.

"He wasn't late in this!" Karen was angry at herself for defending Paul when he did not need it. Maybe she was so quick because she felt he needed it for other reasons. "And what Paul's doing is dangerous and important. He flies clear out over the ship lanes, not only looking for subs or signs of them, but keeping constant vigil over the freighters and convoys. He's reported oil slicks several times, where our boats have gone down. But I guess I'm not supposed to talk about that."

"I guess not," Martin agreed. He added, "You got me wrong, sister, if you thought I was underrating your sweetie, I am aware he is a swell guy and 100 per cent American. I only meant our country is going to need every man who can fly, and then some. I hold our own coast worth protecting, and even the smallest fishing barge as well as the ships being sunk faster than we can replace them. There are other methods of attack, from within, far graver than invasion and air raids."

He did not name them, but she knew he meant inner friction, strikes, sabotage, any and all forms of a fifth column. And she agreed with that, but still he had not said what part he meant to take. She said, "Paul may go into the regular Army. In fact, I know he will if he feels, later, that that is where he is most needed. That's another reason, the MAIN one, we thought it more sensible to not be married in a rush." Martin must be made to understand that the postponement had been mutual. Could Paul have asked for it, as Eva claimed, because he felt some doubt within himself?

"Much more sensible," Marty agreed, "I guess so. In that same tone he said almost the same thing Eva had said to Karen. "You don't know much about love, do you, Miss Fairfax?"

"I don't know what you mean. And you did promise not to keep on calling me names." Why was it he always could make her so angry, just as he always could right anger again instantly, as he did now, with his wide, engaging grin.

"If I break my promises to you," he said, "it's because you make me do it. I told you once that you made me do things I know I shouldn't. You are so lovely, Karen, that I keep forgetting you are such a sensible young lady. And when I said you didn't know much about love I meant a kind of love that you don't know anything about, although maybe it's just as well."

She supposed he meant the kind he himself must have suffered, since Karen still was of the opinion that that was all the mystery there was about him, that he had a lost love in his past. Hadn't he as much as said so himself when he had warned her to leave his heart alone? She supposed he meant the kind of love that hurt, bringing bitterness as well as joy, tears as well as laughter. Well, she was learning about that now, wasn't she?—thanks again to Eva. Or Paul when he did not need it. Maybe he was so quick because she felt he needed it for other reasons. "And what Paul's doing is dangerous and important. He flies clear out over the ship lanes, not only looking for subs or signs of them, but keeping constant vigil over the only one who knows anything—about anyone." He claimed he knew all about her, and she was finding out she did not know herself, or Paul, so that no one could know that much, ever.

"He gave her his wide grin again. "I stand corrected, teacher. I beg your pardon, I mean, Karen, although why can't I call you something of my own, say Katy, or even K, since I'm not allowed the special privilege afforded your special B. F., as Buffy brought out when he said that Mr. Wyatt calls you his darling..."

"Call me K, or even Katy, if you insist," Karen broke in, laughing in spite of herself, although that went to show she had been right in thinking it would help to talk with Marty, who could always get a laugh, if he could get other things like anger and annoyance. She thought Buffy a much safer topic, so she said, "I promised Buffy he could go fishing with you some time. But it may have to wait awhile. He had a little upset. Nothing much." She would not want Martin to know about the airplane ride with Paul that had caused Buffy's illness. She must hold on to all the loyalty she had for Paul now, needing it to stifle any doubts.

"That's too bad," Martin said of the child's upset. "I'm glad it was not anything. He's such a game little chap. Not afraid of anything."

Karen was glad Marty thought as she did about that. Buffy's fear of planes was well founded; it no longer existed, now that he had met it. She still felt sure that Martin would have found some other way, more like her own, than forcing Buffy to go on. Up an impulse she said, "Since you didn't catch those fish, why don't you come home with me for dinner? Buffy would be delighted." It would be a delightful surprise for the boy. There were no guests for dinner this evening. No reason, that she could see, why she should not invite Martin.

He said, "Is that the only reason you ask me? To please Buffy—and because you're afraid I might go hungry?"

"Of course not. I'd like to have you, too. I'd like to have you meet my father—and Paul. No doubt he will drop in later." Hadn't she told him before she wanted him to meet Paul—and herself that Paul must get to know Martin? Now that she had obeyed this impulse, she would not retract it. "Please come," she urged, her eyes smiling into his to show him she really wanted him.

"I'm not dressed," he began. "Dinner is informal tonight. No guests. I won't dress, either. Besides, you look very nice, Mr. Fisherman." His skin had darkened from these past weeks spent out of doors and it made a pleasant contrast to his white shirt and trousers which, although worn, were spick and span.

"When we put it that way, and call ME names, how could a mere mortal man refuse you?" Martin asked.

American Ingenuity Big Factor in War

COLUMBUS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Some of the experts raised a skeptical eyebrow and doubted that bomb casings could be made that way.

Even Hitler and Tojo should know better now. Their fighting men have seen some of them, loaded with TNT, rain death and destruction on land and sea.

Thirty days and nights of sweat and toil went into the tough job engineers of Blaw-Knox Co. undertook to prove that a seemingly impossible method of fashioning casings could be accomplished.

Today, when the Allied bombers send his lethal charges on their way to the Axis target it may be the results of that sweat and toil in the form of 1,000-pound aerial bombs which got their start in a Columbus war plant.

It is another story of American ingenuity and enterprise licking a war production problem. Casings for 1,000-pound bombs roll off the production line in comforting numbers in the Columbus plant of Blaw-Knox, whose engineering department proved that a forging process hitherto untried in mass production could be applied to molten steel to fashion the stubby nose of an aerial bomb.

Ralston Steel Car Co., Columbus industry long experienced in the processing of heavy metal, is co-operating in the job of keeping 'em rolling.

In at one end of the production line go long sections of steel tubing. Out at the other end come the sleek bomb casings, forged, machined, dressed down and neatly painted, ready to be loaded with TNT and fitted with gadgets which are bombing out explosive headaches for the Axis.

Workers who labor under the slogan "more bombs today than tomorrow" are performing with clock-like regularity the job the skeptics doubted could be done.

The job is the fashioning of the rounded nose of the casing in a forging process carried out without the use of an inside die, or mold. Huge hydraulic presses, exerting pressure from 600 to 1,800 tons, squeeze and crimp the straight end of the tubing into a rounded shape with no mold inside to guide the fashioning of the metal.

Some engineers thought it couldn't be done in regular production, that two dies, one on the inside, would be necessary to contain the glowing metal in the shape desired.

Blaw-Knox proved that it could be done with only one die—the outside one in the giant press—and in regular production.

Other plants produce bomb casings by using two dies, but Blaw-Knox didn't have time to set up for that when the call came from army ordinance for bombs—lots of them. The contracts are administered by the Cleveland Ordnance District.

The use of two dies, explains George M. Croft, manager of the bomb division of the company, requires heavier presses for the forging operations. Ralston, which was to handle the forging end of the production battle, had smaller presses but none capable of exerting the thousands of tons of pressure which the two-die operation requires. Neither were the heavy machines, new or used, to be had without delay from other sources.

The emergency called for emergency treatment, and got it. Workmen who need it are provided the incentive to keep the casings rolling. "Penalty row" helps turn the trick. A worker who commits an avoidable error or fails to deliver on a promised task receives public recognition. A piece of his necktie or a part of a shirt sleeve is snipped off and pinned to a bulletin board in "penalty row." That goes for the boss as well as the newest worker.

Lots of workers, of course, don't need an incentive.

Take the new employee named Tom for example. He went to work recently after recovering from battle wounds which brought honorable discharge from the army.

Tom was wounded in the Pacific. The gunfire which cut him down caused other casualties.

It also killed his brother.

CITY'S SCHOOLS BEING READIED FOR FALL TERM

Repairs on Buildings and General Clean-up Now Underway in All Six

Repairs of roofs, refinishing desks and table tops, painting floors and walls and general cleaning up of the school grounds is now in progress in the city's six schools in preparation for re-opening September 7.

Gymnasium and stage floors in the high school building have been refinished with a special varnish which is unusually hard and durable, in order to stand the hard wear which both receive during the school year.

Table tops in the chemistry and biology laboratories of the high school have been repainted with a paint which is acid resisting. The ceiling of the North North Street entrance to the main high school building has been painted a pale cream color, while the pillars and baseboards in the halls are freshly covered with light tan paint. Portions of the walls in numerous classrooms have also been repainted.

Basement floors in the main high school building have received a coat of paint as well as the cafeteria, where the floors have been painted red.

The leak in the roof of the library has been repaired.

Furnaces in all the schools have been put into good shape in preparation for the winter season. The roofs of Sunnyside and Cherry Hill buildings have been repaired as well as the high school roof. Floors of Sunnyside, Eastside and Rose Avenue schools have been repainted as well as the doors of Cherry Hill.

Playground equipment in the school yards of the grade schools which had been removed for the summer will be put back in place in plenty of time for the opening of school.

BARBERRY ERADICATION IN OHIO NOW SOUGHT

COLUMBUS, Aug. 13—(P)—John T. Brown, Ohio director of agriculture, has asked the state board of control to allocate $5,000 for eradication of common barberry plants during the balance of the year.

The spore of black rust, blight for wheat and other small grains resides on barberry plants. For years Ohio received almost $80,000 annually in federal funds toward a barberry eradication.

NEW BAYONETS FOR U. S. FORCES 10 INCHES LONG

Interesting Data Issued By Head of Kings Mills Plant

Fayette County soldiers who carry rifles, as well as all American combat units on all battlefronts now being equipped with a shorter, lighter and sturdier bayonet by the Ordnance Department Army Service Forces.

According to Capt. William V. Luck, commanding officer, Kings Mills Ordnance Plant operated by Remington Arms Company, Inc., strategic materials saved through development of the new bayonet total 362 tons of high carbon steel from estimated 1943 production and 560 tons from the forecast of 1944 production.

The blade of the bayonet has been shortened six inches (from 16 to 10 inches), its weight reduced considerably, and its battle use improved. The new bayonet, like the old one, is flat or sword-like in appearance. It may be used as a trench knife, is easy to handle and has been especially welcomed by jungle fighters, paratroopers, and air-borne infantry.

Japs still retain the flat, razor-sharp bayonet on their rifles. About a year ago, however, the British changed from a blade 12 to 16 inches long to a 7-inch triangular blade. The Russians still continue to use a triangular blade which is issued without a scabbard and is seldom taken from the rifle. The French bayonet is long, round and sharpened to a needle point.

Bayonet drill, despite long range mechanized and aerial warfare, is still standard training in the American Army.

SEMI-LABOR DRAFT MAY SAVE FATHERS

Eligible Men May Be Given Chance To Work

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—(P)—Action which may retard and minimize the drafting of fathers is expected to be announced Sunday by war manpower commission-selective service officials.

The line to be taken probably will be aimed at adapting draft operations to the manpower problem by giving draft-eligible men an inducement to shift into vital war production work. It was described as about the ultimate WMC move short of a general labor-draft.

But even as this was developing, Senator Davis (R-Pa.) proposed that congress remove selective service from the "domination" of the WMC and specifically bar induction of fathers until all other eligible men are taken by the armed forces. There is, he said, no military need for drafting family heads.

GOLD STARS AND DIAMONDS

Along life's way I behold one of God's most wonderful creations—a mother. I see a little infant boy with an admiring mother thinking of her boy only as a mother can understand. I see a little anxious child trying to crawl. I see the sunshine in her face as he begins to walk. I see a proud mother dressing this boy, implanting a kiss on his cheek as he is off on his way to Sunday school holding her hand, both proud of each other. I see a mother with great hopes and aspiration as her boy begins wending his way to school. How anxiously she awaits his homecoming and the feelings he has to express about school.

I see this boy urged on only as a mother can do in building character and manhood. I see a mother as she hears with sadness our country's call to arms. I see a mother that never shirks duty to her country. I see a mother with mingled sorrow and pride as her boy says, "Mother, I am going to war—for you, my home, my country. You taught me to do my duty. I shall not fail you—". How proud of him she feels, but her heart is heavy as she says "goodbye" so bravely, and "God be with you 'til we meet again."

She sees him tuck away her picture. He implants a kiss on her cheek—then hustles away. I see the anxious look on her face as he turns and waves a last goodbye. He is now on his way to fight for you and his country thinking all the time of home, mother and duty. Is it any wonder he is a mother's pride and joy? Many boys will come back in our heart's memory only. But mother, your boy will come back every day in the memory of your heart and remain always with you. He did not live in vain. Each gold star costs a mother a diamond—her boy, always a diamond to her.

I see a mother wearing his medal for valor in defense of country. He made the supreme sacrifice—beloved diamond boy, mother will wear your medal and a gold star for you, and as she nears "peaceful valley" your devotion will add luster to her in the sunset of life where all will end well as she passes on to meet her loved ones. They did not live in vain—they gave their all. Their country honors them in the halo of gold star mothers and diamonds of real American boys—our boys and mothers—heroes all.

Community Swept By Violent Storm And Deluge

NIGHT IS BRIGHT WITH CONTINUAL LIGHTNING FLASH

Near Inch and Half of Rain Falls Here Within Less Than Two Hours

One of the most violent electrical storms in years swept over a large part of Fayette County Thursday night starting shortly after 10 o'clock and continuing until nearly midnight before the storm moved onward into Ross, and Pickaway counties.

The storm followed one of the hottest, most humid afternoons of the year, when the mercury reached 90 degrees and the humidity was intense, so that there was general complaint of the heat.

While the storm was at its height there was an almost continual flicker of lightning and by actual count 25 flashes occurred in a single minute, although part of the time it was still more intense and continued a constant flash as the storm moved south-eastward.

In Washington C. H. total precipitation during the storm was 1.46 inches and in areas north, east and southeast of the city rainfall was equally great.

At Jeffersonville rainfall was heavy and the lightning was intense. There were also heavy winds in some areas of the storm and in isolated spots some hail fell.

During 1½ hours at Jeffersonville, lights of the town went out 24 times, residents said.

The enormous rainfall here flooded dozens of catchbasins and scores of basements as water from a few inches to several feet poured into them.

Streets were flooded throughout the city as the storm sewers again proved inadequate to handle the unusual amount of rainfall.

While lightning struck hundreds of times within the county, damage was confined chiefly to trees. The Robert Humphrey house on the Lewis Road was struck but so far as known was not damaged badly.

Most of the lightning was sheet lightning, which flashed about in the upper portion of the storm clouds.

In some parts of the county the wind blew corn down somewhat.

The heavy precipitation raised all streams in the path of the storm.

F. SHADE GRANGE IS COMPLIMENTED

Had 'Best Exhibit' Showing Agriculture in War

Forest Shade Grange number 368 received special commendation on their Fair exhibit from A. B. Murray who judged the Grange exhibits, it was revealed today.

"In my opinion, the booth of Forest Shade Grange number 368 has the best exhibit showing agriculture's part in the War program," Murray said. He added that all other Grange booths rated a close second.

Forest Shade Grange was awarded $37.50 in War Savings stamps for the display it made at the Fair. Their booth featured posters showing progress made in Victory gardens and the number of service men from the Grange as well as garden and farm produce. The award was made to the Grange which showed through its booth the most effort expended in War activities.

COUNTY'S QUOTA FOR WAR FUND SET AT $22,000

Money To Be Used To Soften War's Jolts on Civilians And Fighting Men

"Fayette Counties and Ohio as in general are deeply concerned over the fate of the war sufferers in the Allied Nations who, unless the war ends soon, will face another severe winter without sufficient food, clothing or shelter," said A. B. Murray, chairman of the Fayette County campaign for the National War Fund.

This he disclosed after examining a report sent him by Charles F. Kennedy, president of the Ohio division of NWF. The report contained a summary of county activities by various county chairman and war chest directors all over the state.

The National War Fund drive here will begin October 10 for $22,000 to help finance the 16 agencies which comprise the NWF.

"These reports" said Murray, "show that the citizens of Ohio are keenly alive to the needs of these helpless people, little children, women and the aged and infirm, who have been driven from their homes by the Nazi invaders. Their cities have been wiped out, their homes have been destroyed and families separated."

"We must not forget that the Chinese have been in this war six years and millions of them have been killed or suffered injury. We must not forget, too, that the Russians have held the Nazis back until the Americans could prepare to take their part in the war. We must read and hear with deep sympathy the sufferings of the Greeks, Poles, French, Yugoslavs, Hollanders, Belgians, Norwegians and Czechoslovaks."

There are six million war prisoners alone and there are thousands upon thousands of war refugees whose only hope lies in the generosity and help of the American people Murray pointed out.

"I am confident that the people of Fayette County, realizing their position of safety, free from air raids and invasion, will respond quickly and liberally to this world wide call for relief," he concluded.

REQUISITIONED CORN TO GO BACK TO OWNERS

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP)—About 1,000,000 bushels of corn requisitioned under the emergency corn purchase program will be returned immediately to the original owners, the local office of the Commodity Credit Corporation announced today.

This action will be taken as a result of the War Food Administration's removal of most marketing restrictions on corn late yesterday, it was explained.

All navigable air about 17,000 feet altitude is now reserved in the U. S. for military traffic.

MONTH'S REPORT ON MILK RATING SENT PRODUCERS

Cards Will Be Sent to Forty, Giving Present Standing Of Market Milk

Cards showing present standing of their milk are being prepared for mailing to the 40-odd producers whose milk flow into the Washington C. H. milk shed by Dr. E. W. Bolton, of the Fayette County Health Department. The milk shed here is composed of the three dairies and one raw milk station in the Washington C. H. area.

Farmers producing milk here are "doing a good job of producing clean milk," according to Dr. Bolton, who explained that even with present labor shortages they are producing the same quality of milk—good milk—that the consumers had been getting when labor was plentiful.

The cards, which go to milk producers under Grade A supervision, are sent out monthly and show improvement or regression of milk quality. Bacterial counts, designated on the cards, indicate the quality of milk. Bacteria contained in milk are not necessarily harmful, Dr. Bolton pointed out, saying that certain bacteria are needed to make butter and buttermilk. If any harmful bacteria are in the milk, they are destroyed by the pasteurization process.

Each milk producer is able to judge the quality of his milk and thus to improve his output and improvement is constant, according to Dr. Bolton. In expressing his opinion of the milk delivered to consumers he said "you can't make good milk out of bad by pasteurizing it—and the milk here is good." The high quality is indicative of sanitary milking conditions and healthy cows he revealed, intimating that the source of good market milk is in the quality of milk delivered to dairymen.

Seek Payment of $207,000 Indebtedness

Greenfield's board of education has decided to place on the November ballot a proposal calling for a six mill levy for school purposes to cover a period of five years.

Three mills represent an assessment that has been renewed regularly to provide operating funds for the town's huge school plant, and the additional three mills is asked for the purpose of liquidating a total indebtedness of $207,000.

The board has announced that it would be unable to keep the schools in operation if the proposal is defeated.

Some of the outstanding debts include back salaries of employees.
